Unconventional
Solid Surface Crafting

ECCEL è un progetto indipendente che nasce sperimentando materie e tecniche usate in architettura su grandi superfici e nell' interior design ma applicate in modo non convenzionale e mai visto prima. Il materiale utilizzato è il Corian® e l'Hi Macs®. Pezzi troppo piccoli per l'uso comune vengono recuperati ed assemblati rompendo ogni convenzione e rivoluzionando le regole di utilizzo per creare oggetti unici che diventano uno straordinario incontro tra arte e design.

Alcuni elementi del progetto, per le sue caratteristiche innovative e di rispetto per l'ambiente, sono stati selezionati ed esposti nel palazzo della Triennale di Milano durante la manifestazione internazionale XXI Triennale Design after Design 2016

ECCEL is an independent project born experimenting with materials and techniques commonly used in architecture on large surfaces or in interior design but now used in a new and unconventional way. These materials are Corian e Hi Macs. Pieces too small for common use are retrieved to be then assembled breaking all the rules and revolutionizing their usage to create unique items, an extraordinary match between art and design.

Some elements of this project, for their innovative features and for being environment friendly, have been selected and exhibited in the Triennale Palace in Milan during the international exhibition XXI Triennale Design After Design 2016.
